FIFTEEN PERISH WHEN SHIP SINKS

LAKE ERIE STEAMER FOUNDERS; SIX CREW MEMBERS ARE SAVED

Meager Reports Fail To Give Cause Of Lake Disaster; Believe Vessel Shipped Water During Heavy Swell

Xenia, Pa., July 29.—Fifteen members of the crew of the "George J. Whelan," Lake Erie steamer enroute from Sandusky, O., to Tonawanda, N. Y., were reported to have perished when the steamer foundered off the shore of Van Buren, N. Y., early today.

Six members of the crew were picked up and rescued. First reports were meager, giving no cause for the sinking. No explosion was reported. Shipping men here believed the "George J. Whelan," heeling over under a heavy swell, shipped water through her open hatches. She was reported to have foundered almost immediately.

QUAKE RECORDED IN CARIBBEAN SEA

NEW YORK, July 29.—An earthquake shock, 2,100 miles from New York City—probably in the Caribbean Sea—was recorded by the Fordham University seismograph today. The shock occurred at 3:30 this morning, Eastern Standard time. It was the third shock that has been recorded in the last fifteen days. The first shock was felt in Guatemala, the second in Jamaica. The shock which recorded today was 200 miles nearer New York City than the previous disturbance.

NEUTRALITY PLANS DROPPED BY HOOVER AS PRIMARIES NEAR

President's Letter Aids
Congressman In Tennessee

WASHINGTON, July 29.—President Hoover has abandoned, in at least, his hitherto announced policy of aloof neutrality in all Republican primary battles. The President's letter to Representative B. Carroll Reece, who is having a hard fight for re-nomination in the first district of Tennessee, endorsing Reece's record, marks the first definite movement on Mr. Hoover's part to aid his friends and cripple the opposition to them.

Reece is opposed by Sam W. Price, who favors the Norris bill for government operation of Muscle Shoals, and who has been accusing Reece of scuttling the interests of Tennessee in opposing it.

Just how far Mr. Hoover may go in his new policy of taking sides in a Republican primary remains to be seen, but political circles here were fairly buzzing with speculation about it today, and comparing it to the old Wilsonian policy of putting the power of the White House behind its friends.

One assured and foregone result of the Reece letter is that the White House is going to be inundated with appeals for similar outspoken support from the president. These appeals have hitherto been discouraged. On several occasions Mr. Hoover has gone out of his way to assure candidates that he takes no sides in Republican primary elections. The last and most notable occasion was in the New Jersey primary. Twice during that battle Mr. Hoover issued public statements avowing his disinterestedness, this notwithstanding that Dwight Morrow was running as a wet and Franklin Fort, one of Mr. Hoover's most intimate friends and advisers, was running as a dry, and "Hoover candidate." The last legislation was whispered through Jersey by Fort's managers.

The Reece letter, besides furnishing an insight into a new political policy on the part of Mr. Hoover, also threw some illumination on the power policy of the administration.

SUNSTROKE VICTIM IS REPORTED HERE; TUESDAY IS COOLER

Humidity Makes Xenia
Suffer Monday; Boy
Overcome

One sunstroke victim was reported here as excessive temperatures, coupled with high humidity, provided Xenia with another day of almost unbearably hot weather Monday. A blazing sun sent mercury in thermometers to a maximum of 98 degrees, the peak temperature being reached about 5 p. m.

Over-exerting himself, John Downes, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Downes, 24 Maple St., suffered a sunstroke late in the afternoon and is under care of a physician at McClellan Hospital. Returning to his home about 4 o'clock after playing all afternoon in the hot sun, the lad complained of feeling ill and went to bed. Two hours later he became delirious and sank into a coma, from which he emerged after being removed to the hospital. At one time his temperature mounted to 108 degrees but he was resting easily Tuesday and his condition was pronounced as not being serious by Dr. T. F. Myler, attending physician.

Because of the damp ground and consequent high humidity, Xenians perhaps suffered more from the heat Monday than at any other time during the existing spell of hot weather, although the official temperature was five degrees lower than the peak a week ago Monday.

As was expected, predicted thundershowers failed to materialize Monday night but a refreshing breeze Tuesday morning indicated the day would be somewhat cooler. The temperature was 72 degrees at 8 a. m. Tuesday, this being the official reading of Weatherman Ernest L. Harner.

Fair weather and moderate temperatures will prevail Wednesday if you are inclined to believe forecasts, but there is no immediate prospect of a definite break in the record-shattering and blistering weather.

MAYOR ACCUSED OF FATAL SHOOTING

OTTAWA, O., July 29.—Dale W. Noffsinger, mayor of Continental, O., near here, today was charged with the fatal shooting of Alex Krieger 39, Cleveland motorist, in an affidavit which was filed in the justice of the peace court.

Noffsinger claimed he fired at Krieger in self defense, following an argument with the latter over a traffic law violation. The mayor, shortly after the shooting, was exonerated by Coroner Peter D. Biele, who returned a verdict of homicide in self defense.

The affidavit, formally charging Noffsinger with the shooting of Krieger in Continental on the night of July 19, was filed by Matthew Krieger, father of the victim.

"I hear," Mr. Hoover wrote Reece, "that your opponents are charging you with failure to serve the interests of your constituents because you refused to accept the Senate (Norris) plan for dealing with Muscle Shoals."

The fact is that the house plan will secure development of this great resource more effectively and more speedily in the interest of Tennessee than would the senate plan. I am assured that the senate plan cannot be passed in the house. Nor would I approve the plan, because it is not in the interest of Tennessee or the rest of the nation. My course has been the only one which can secure an advancement of this development in the interest

Mrs. Mirlam "Ma" Ferguson, former governor, and Ross Sterling, multimillionaire Houston publisher, have virtually been conceded places in the run-off on the Democratic ticket for governor of Texas. The run-off will be held in August, as none of the 11 primary candidates had a majority.

The gross estate amounted to $17,210,599. The widow, Mrs. May Depew, and his son, Chauncey M. Depew, Jr., are the principal beneficiaries, sharing between them the entire residuary estate.

A fund of $1,000,000 was left to Yale University.

TWO DEAD FROM GAS FUMES IN OLD WELL

MT. PLEASANT, O., July 29.—Oscar Patterson, 63, and Theodore Davies, 14, are dead here today as the result of being overcome with gas while they were cleaning out a well at a home on the Martins Ferry Pike where debris had made it impossible to get water to the stock. The lowering of cattle led to the discovery of the bodies late yesterday.

Americans Flee To Boats; Foreigners Are Warned

PEIPING, July 29.—A ravaging force of 10,000 Communists swept up the Yangste valley today and overran Changsha, Hunan province capital, burning the government buildings and threatening to destroy all foreign property.

All Americans, with the exception of three missionaries, sought safety aboard the American gunboat Palos, with British and Japanese warships taking care of their residents. The trio of missionaries refused to seek safety on the gunboat, preferring to cast their lot with the half million Chinese who were trapped inside the walls of the ancient city.

With the invaders rapidly gaining in strength and the Nanking government forces overpowered in most places by Reds while attempting to cope with rebels in other sections, the various foreign governments have formally warned their residents in the endangered zones to depart at once.

Twenty Americans who are spending the summer at Kuling are endangered by approach of the raiding communists, who are pressing ahead to Kukiang. The raiders already are masters of the capitals of Hunan and Kiangsu.

The American legation has formally warned 419 Americans to leave the menaced areas of Hunan, Honan, Hupeh and Kiangsi.

AMERICAN SLOOPS IN FINAL WORK-OUT

NEWPORT, R. I., July 29.—The final work-out of the four sloops contending for the right to defend America's cup against Shamrock V, will take place off this port some time this afternoon.

Three of the great white-winged queens were out on the America's cup courses yesterday and went through a vigorous drill in all points of sailing that lasted for nearly five hours. The only absentee was the Thorne-Sammond Syndicate yacht Whirlwind.

Weetamoe, Enterprise and Yankee put out of Brenton's cove early in the afternoon and it was dusk before they finally returned to their moorings off the New York Yacht Club station. Their skippers and crews had hoped that yesterday would give the cup yachts a real test with the various changes in rigging they have undergone since the last of the observation trials two weeks ago.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS HERE ARE EXEMPTED FROM SCHOOL LEVY

Money Raised From State
Levy To Be Returned,
Said

All Greene County school districts are placed on a par with exempted villages and cities by action of the county board of education Monday afternoon in voting to return to each district the taxes collected annually under the state 2.65 mills levy for school purposes. The action, revealed Tuesday by County Superintendent H. C. Aultman, is believed to be a pioneer movement in the state in equalizing the collecting and distribution of school taxes and Greene is thought to be the first county in the state to exempt all its districts.

The collection of the 2.65 mills school levy is required by law and was originally a state levy. The total collection was then distributed back to the school districts proportionate to their transportation costs and teacher salary costs. Cities were made exempt from this distribution in 1927 and in 1928 Osborn gained exemption.

The action of the county board, putting them all on an equal basis, in that it returns the full amount collected to each district. The tax, which is required by state law, will be levied the same as in the past, but instead of being converted to a central fund which is distributed to districts proportionate with operating costs, will be immediately returned to each district in the county so that it will be used for that district's own operating expenses.

Inequalities in transportation and salary costs made the distribution unequal, it is explained, and thus one district which, by virtue of economies in operation did not need extra help, would be "robbed" to help finance the operating costs in another district in which operating costs were higher. The exemption plan is expected to equalize this condition since it will restore the amount of the levy to each district and place on each district the burden of financing the school operation costs from the fund.

An effort to communicate with Dr. J. S. Clifton, state director of education, before the plan was adopted, failed, according to Superintendent Aultman, who said that he had written Dr. Clifton several days ago that the county board planned such an action. While the advice of the director has not been obtained, the county board feels that it is acting within its rights in allowing the exemption and that, while the plan sets a precedent, it will make for more equality in the distribution and expenditure of school funds.

SOVIET EMBARGO STILL BEING URGED

NEW YORK, July 29.—Efforts of American interests to establish embargoes on Soviet-produced goods increased today when demands were made for an investigation of the importation of Russian manganese ores.

Appeals for the investigation, which were sent by the American Manganese Producers' Association of the United States tariff commission in Washington, followed barring from entry here two cargoes of Soviet pulpwood, said to have been produced by Soviet prison labor.

Thirty-two other ships carrying Soviet pulpwood and other cargoes were reported en route here.

DETECTIVE SLAIN

NEW YORK, July 29.—Four alleged automobile gunmen were held today charged with killing Detective Thomas E. Hill, after the officer stopped the car of the quartet to question them. After shooting Hill, the men attempted to escape but were halted in a running gun battle with police. One of the men was wounded.

PARENTAL OBJECTION HALTS UNION OF ARISTOCRAT WITH BUTLER-LOVER

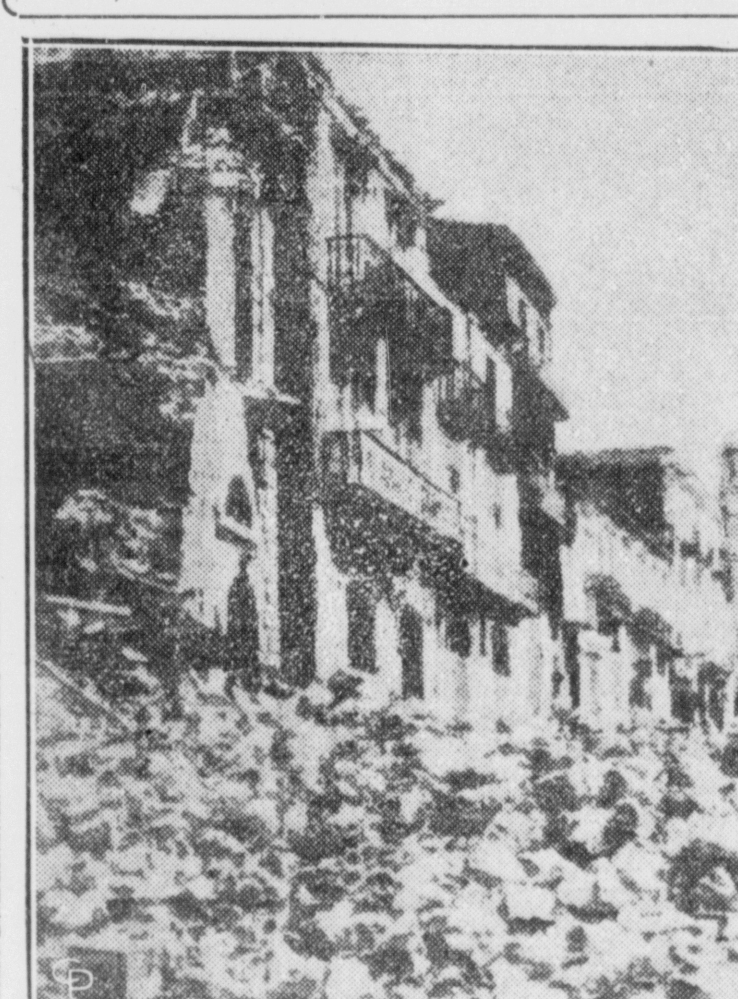

LONDON, July 29.—A blasted romance was in prospect today with a report that the parents of Miss Gyltha Stourton had withheld approval of her projected engagement to Signor Del Agnes, Italian butler of Sir Ronald Lindsay at Washington.

Miss Stourton returned home for the express purpose of securing parental consent to her marital intentions. Her father, M. J. Stourton, grandson of the nineteenth baron of Stourton, stated he had refused consent to the marriage. "Any engagement between my daughter and Del Agnes is impossible and absurd," Major Stourton informed International News Service. He made it clear that the incident was a closed matter and the issue was settled.

His daughter followed Sir Howard and Lady Esme to Washington as social secretary and remained in the employ of Sir Ronald Lindsay when he became British ambassador. She met Signor Del Agnes in Rome and the two became close friends. The report of their engagement created great surprise in Washington and abroad.

Miss Stourton it was reported here, will remain in England indefinitely.

THREE SHIPWRECKED MEN CLING TO BREAKWATER UNTIL RESCUED

CLEVELAND, July 29.—Three men who had clung to the breakwater wall of Lake Erie of Edgewater-Beach here for several hours after their sail board had been dashed to pieces by heavy waves, were rescued by two boatmen today. An autopsy which was performed on the body of the youth yesterday—the day set for his wedding to Miss Doris Kuns, 21, his childhood sweetheart—failed to reveal the contributing causes of his death, according to coroner W. H. Booth, of Sandusky County.

The heart and lungs were too thoroughly seared to shed any light on the mystery of Gibbs' death. Coroner Booth stated, "The body was found in the water, and the autopsy disclosed, however, that there were no scalp wounds on the top of the head. The back of the head was too badly burned to reveal whether or not the youth had been struck with a weapon."

The investigation of the death was being conducted today by Frank De Lora, a member of the Toledo homicide squad who was brought here by W. H. Gibbs, father of the dead youth, and County Prosecutor F. H. Buckingham.

Gibbs' body was found on the Clyde-Castalia Road near Clyde within a hour after he had left his fiancée at her home here. The body was burned almost beyond recognition and it was not identified until yesterday by his father. Miss Kuns was not aware of his death until almost time for the wedding ceremony yesterday.

A piece of charred rope was found around Gibbs' body when it was discovered in the burning machine. A hammer lay on the seat beside him. These two discoveries have led police authorities to believe that Gibbs might have been murdered either by highwaymen or by a jealous suitor of Miss Kuns.

BAPTISTS MEET

GRANVILLE, O., July 29.—The annual Ohio Baptist assembly, with an approximate registration of 400 Baptist laymen and young people, was in full session here today following the opening vespers service on the Dennison University campus last night.

DIVER DROWNS

POWHATAN, O., July 29.—Stunned when his head struck a rock while he was diving in the Ohio River, Louis Prantiquilli, 35, is dead here today. He was drowned following the blow.

Belief that Mrs. Smith was with Orle Noland of Solon, a former friend, on the night of her disappearance was virtually dissolved today with the report of Akron chemists that their analysis of spots upon the upholstery of Noland's automobile were not blood stains.

Authorities at first believed that the murder of Mrs. Smith might have been linked with the death of Noland who fell under the wheels of a truck trailer early on the morning after Mrs. Smith's disappearance.

AIRSHIP STARTS ON 2,800-MILE FLIGHT AND CANADIAN GOAL

Trip Is Experimental;
Luxurious Airliner
Heads For Labrador

LONDON, July 29.—The giant British dirigible R-100, bound from Cardington, Eng., to Montreal, swept over Rathlin Island, off the northern coast of Ireland in the north channel at noon today (8 a. m. E. S. T.).

The huge airship was traveling at great speed as it swept across the southwestern tip of Scotland and out over the stormy north channel, heading for the Hebrides.

The airship had soared up the Mull of Kintyre in a heavy fog, and cut across the channel and followed the mainland to Cusendall. The dirigible then struck a course out over the channel again to Rathlin Island and thence northward. The dirigible previously had been sighted over the Isle of Man.

There was some dismay over the R-100's slow progress, but it was believed here the ship's commander was jockeying for a favorable position before striking out across the Atlantic.

At 2:30 p. m. (8:30 a. m. Eastern Standard time), the air ministry received a wireless message from the airship. The message stated the ship had cleared the island of Orkney in the neighborhood of Argyllshire shortly after noon, taking a westerly course. The ship's ground speed was fifty knots an hour. The commander reported "all well."

CARDINGTON, Wales, July 29.—Shooting northward in its flight to Montreal, Canada, the British dirigible R-100 today sailed the skies serenely on the first leg of its 2,800-mile trans-Atlantic cruise. The world's biggest and fastest airliner soared away from its mooring mast here at 3:45 a. m. this morning, just as the first pale touch of dawn was graying the horizon. Looming momentarily like a steely cloud above the moor base, the 5,000,000-cubic foot hulk roared in a wide circle around the field, gathered momentum rapidly and like a flying cloud soared away in the direction of Liverpool.

Commanded by the intrepid and seasoned air veteran squadron leader R. S. Booth, the take-off was accomplished as gracefully as any ever engineered by Dr. Hugo Eckener in his Graf Zeppelin. Forty-four persons went aloft with the airship, thirty-eight of them members of the crew and the rest in the capacity of technical observers or the like. Among them is Commander Sir Dennistoun Burney, responsible for the ship's construction and who lavished many years of effort and development upon the construction of the airship.

While the exact course of the R-100 remains dependent on weather conditions ahead, it was announced immediately before the start that after crossing the English coast at Liverpool and heading northward toward the Hebrides Islands off the west coast of Scotland to skirt a depression, the huge airship would be pointed directly toward Cape Farewell, southernmost tip of Greenland.

Continuing from there, it will cruise over Labrador to the mouth of the St. Lawrence River, following this to Montreal.

The voyage is expected to be completed inside of three days, although a wide margin on food and fuel was allowed for. The 2,000 pounds of food and 500 gallons of water in the storage tanks of the dirigible will be sufficient for at least five days, it was estimated, and there are thirty tons of gasoline.

Never has an airliner fared forth more comfortably and luxuriously equipped than is the R-100. Product of ten years of experimenting and built at an approximate cost of $2,500,000, it carries the empire's fond hopes that in the not far distant future Canada and the mother land will become more closely linked through rapid mail and passenger service provided by dirigibles spanning the Atlantic as regularly as steamships.

The average speed of the British airships is 81.5 miles per hour, or nearly five miles faster than the best speed of the Graf Zeppelin. In a secondary way, therefore, Great Britain will also seek in the next two days to capture the speed record of the air for long distance voyages by dirigible.

The flight, regarded largely in the light of an experiment by British air circles, is being made without paying passengers, without mail or freight.

It is the second elaborate British venture into trans-Atlantic dirigible flying, the first such trip having been accomplished from Scotland to Mineola in 1919 by the R-34, wrecked during a windstorm in 1921.

The R-100 is 709 feet long, sixty-five feet shorter than the Graf Zeppelin, but is 133 feet in diameter, or thirty-five feet greater in thickness than the German air queen. The British ship has six Rolls-Royce Condors, two in each of three power gondolas, generating 3,600 horsepower. The British

FAIR TICKETS WILL BE AWARDED PUZZLE WINNERS IN PAPER

Following a custom of several years twelve Greene County persons will be the guests of the Greene County Fair Board at the 1930 Greene County Fair which will take place August 5 to 8.

In this paper will be found two puzzles of advertising by the Fair Board and Xenia merchants. In each merchant's ad will be found a box containing a number of jumbled letters. When these letters are arranged in correct order they will spell the name of some interesting feature of the 1930 Fair. Some names contain two or three words so it will take a little real concentration to figure out the correct words, but the fact that some titles are long will only add to the interest with real puzzle fans.

Reading all the stories in this paper in regard to Fair attractions will give valuable clues to solving the puzzle. Write all answers clearly on one side of a sheet, give the name of the attractions without any abbreviations, be sure to give the name of the merchant in whose ad each jumbled feature is found, sign your name and address, and mail to the contest editor of the Gazette so that the list will reach the Gazette office by 10 a. m. Friday, August 1.

Gazette employees or their families are not eligible for the contest. The judging will be done by three persons who are entirely disinterested and will be conducted in an entirely impartial way.

Take the contest sheets and work out the puzzle at once and send your answers to the Gazette office as early as possible. Twelve people are going to enjoy the Fair free of charge. You may be one of them.

FAIR OF GREAT VALUE SENATOR FESS TELLS SECRETARY BRYSON

Prominent officials have written J. Robert Bryson, secretary of the Greene County Fair, congratulating Greene County on the excellence of its fair and endorsing and approving the program.

The first of these endorsements is from U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, newly chosen chairman of the Republican National Committee, who has had personal evidence of the success of Greene County's Fairs.

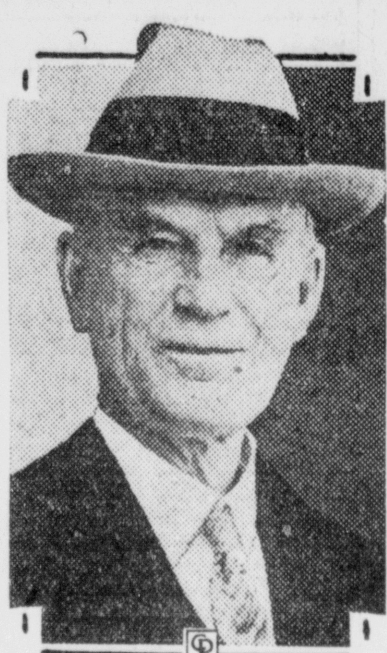

His letter to Mr. Bryson follows: July 8

My dear Mr. Bryson: I want to congratulate you upon the prospects of the Greene County Fair, both financially and as a community asset.

It will not be seriously denied that a season of getting together, where our people will not only advantage in a social way, but where they can exchange views on important questions as well as observe the progress of the interests of agriculture, is of very great value to the community at large. It also affords a sort of outing which in these days is of no slight importance.

I hope you will have great success this year.

Yours very truly,

INDIAN MOUND YIELDS RELICS

Excavators Find Skeletons Of Mound-Builders Near Xenia, On Hanes Farm

INTERESTING records of the early mound-building Indians in Greene County are being unearthed by Cash Hanes, Fairground Road, in excavations being made on an Indian mound on his farm five miles from Xenia.

Two complete skeletons taken from the mound, and the skulls of two children, are now being exhibited, according to Dr. W. A. Galloway, president of the Greene County Historical Society, who visited the mound Sunday.

The skeletons, according to Dr. Galloway, are among the best found anywhere. One skeleton is that of a very large man, more than six feet tall, who was buried face down, but with his head turned to one side. The head had been crushed and badly flattened, with fractures of the jaw and left orbital plate and skull showing.

The appearance of the fractures did not indicate a blow from a weapon and Dr. Galloway believes the mound builder may have been killed by a falling tree, possibly during a cyclone. Tools, customarily buried with their dead by the mound builders, included a hard stone plate for which no purpose has been determined, a bone gouge, with a six inch blade and a handle six inches long and a bone awl which is the finest Dr. Galloway says he has ever seen, still being sharp. The presence of bones of small animals indicates that food was buried with the corpse.

In the skull of one of the children the second teeth were just beginning to push out the first teeth, a rare finding, according to Dr. Galloway. The mound itself is not large, but it is said that some of the finest specimens are taken from the smaller mounds. It is believed to have been the burying ground of a small village of mound builders since the discovery of a number of tools some time ago indicated the presence of a village workshop.

The mound was originally opened last summer but has not been worked very much until this summer, it is said. Dr. Galloway expects it to yield some of the most interesting specimens of the mound builders ever found in Greene County.

TWO AUTOISTS HURT AS CAR TURNS OVER

Two accident victims were treated at the office of Dr. H. C. Schick, in Cedarville, Monday morning following an accident on the Cedarville-Xenia Pike at the edge of Cedarville. The names of the victims were not learned but were a man and his wife from Louisville, Ky. The accident occurred when the driver lost control of the machine, when something became wrong with the steering apparatus. The car, which was traveling toward Xenia, left the road and upset in the ditch.

The occupants were not seriously injured and were only bruised and scratched. They continued on to Louisville, following the mishap.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR FATHER REWARDS—When thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face; That thou appear not unto men to fast, thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.—Matthew 6:17, 18.

PIONEER OF THE SKY

Glenn Curtiss, who has just died at the comparatively early age of fifty-two, will be remembered, with the Wright brothers, as one of the foremost pioneers of aviation in this country. Curtiss was both an inventor and a flyer. Others have come after him and hung up new speed, altitude and distance records; but few, if any, of those who have followed him into the clouds have combined the mechanical genius, daring and prophetic vision possessed by the man who broke practically every aeronautic record existing in 1910 by flying a primitive plane from Albany to New York in two hours and 46 minutes.

A few weeks ago Curtiss covered the same route in an up-to-date passenger-carrying plane in one hour and 20 minutes. A tremendous development in aviation had occurred in the intervening twenty years; and to Glenn Curtiss, as much as to any other one man in this country, credit for this development was due. When his neighbors laughed at the motorcycle he constructed by attaching to a bicycle a gasoline engine constructed out of tomato cans, Curtiss was not abashed. When they scoffed at the idea that anything would come of his experiments in flying he continued to pursue his vision. As a result he has bequeathed to aviation a name men will repeat and respect as long as they fly. The human race is content to plod along in the ruts furrowed by its ancestors. Occasionally a Glenn Curtiss appears and points the way to a new and better lane of progress.

TREE SITTERS

Since boys in various parts of the country have begun to take literally to the tall timbers in order to stage tree-sitting endurance contests, several people have suggested spankings as cures for their summer madness. Perhaps that sort of remedy may be practical in some instances. But we do not feel sure whether it should be applied to the youngsters or to their parents. The former certainly ought not to be blamed too heartily. After all, it is normal for children to ape their elders and as long as pole sitters and other "endurance test" champions strut around the country and cash in on notoriety, it is to be expected that the craze will infect the juvenile world.

As to the fear of many about the physical and mental effects of tree sitting on those that indulge in the pastime, the likelihood that a healthy boy will suffer any serious deterioration of health from squatting in the crotch of a tree like his monkey cousins, doesn't seem very great. The human anatomy has great recuperative powers in the savage period of its development. As to mental effects; they can probably best be combated by telling juvenile tree sitters just what little fools they are.

How steady and comforting are the tidings that workmen, in California this time, found a live frog embedded in part of a concrete wall put up two years ago. Just before vacation begins, our ideal of placid isolation is a toad or frog embedded in stone or concrete.

Now that President Hoover thinks he will be able to get away from Washington for only a fortnight's holiday, instead of the month or six weeks originally planned, there is a new bond between him and the world that gets the "customary two weeks."

Perhaps Mr. Legge thought that by making it sharp and caustic, he could cauterize the wounds of bleeding Kansas.

What is funnier than the picture of some old friend dressed up to appear in an amateur show as a medieval hero?

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

THROUGH-GOING

One day in the Smoky Mountains of East Tennessee the writer came upon a very old man sitting by the roadside. Nobody hurries in the Smokies, and so we had a talk. The old man spoke gently and with feeling of the recent loss of his wife. They were both sturdy mountain people, used to hardship, knowing little of the ease and comfort of the world outside. One sentence in the old man's talk was never to be forgotten. "My wife," said the mountaineer, "was what I call a through-going woman."

Well, there was philosophy enough and inspiration enough in that remark to take a man or woman through life in strong, courageous fashion. All too often things don't turn out the way we had hoped. The road is steeper and harder than we thought it would be. Are you a through-going man? Are you a through-going woman?

TAKING SOMETHING ABROAD

This summer thousands of Americans are traveling in Europe or getting ready to go there. They are thinking much of routes, clothes, and good times to come. Few are thinking about the age-old history of European countries. Comparatively few are thinking about the thrill and fascination of historical spots. There are castles and cathedrals, ancient battlefields and roads of destiny. Most people go abroad unprepared to bring away much. They go not realizing they can bring back only what they take in the mind.

SETTLING SOON

The American Arbitration association is at work year in and year out setting up boards of arbitration for the settling of disputes among business men and business concerns without recourse to the regular courts and their long and expensive delays. For many business matters these boards, made up largely of business men, have proved a great improvement on the regular law courts. More power to the Arbitration association. Too many folks in court now, too much red tape, too many laws.

IDLENESS THE CURSE

Go through a large prison, as this writer has done more than once. The saddest, most tragic sight is not the death chamber. The most depressing place to visit is not the hospital. The thing most hopelessly sad is the sight of men sitting quietly in cells—in idleness. There is no curse like the curse of idleness. How unimportant is the kind of work when you are confronted with nothing to do? How thankful we ought to be so long as there is one brick to lay above another, so long as we can use at least part of the time the mind and the body we were brought into the world to use. Better die, soon though it may be, from overwork (if that is possible) than live long and be idle.

Auction Pitch

In a game of auction pitch A needs one point to go out. B needs two. A scores jack, and B scores low and game. Who wins?

ANOTHER SUCKER GAME

NEW YORK CITY, New York.

A gentleman wrote to me some time ago imparting the glad information that I had been selected along with "other eminent" pen pushers to have my name appear in a new Who's Who in Something. Through a clerical error my amanuensis neglected to send the ten bucks I was supposed to transmit "to cover the cost of preparation." And now the book is out and I ain't in it.

New York is the Mecca for ambitious ads who wear out their young lives compiling Who's Who's and Blue Books of This, and Red Books of That, and White Books of Something Else Again. All these volumes are laudatory rehearsals of the achievements of The Great, The Near-Great and The Plain, Unvarnished Sap who doesn't mind parting with ten bucks to rub shoulders with The Illustrious, even if it's only on a Sucker List.

SLUMP

Speaking of celebrities: Old Poinsett Bigelow, the man with the beard like the Kaisers, who went over some time ago to Doorn to apologize to Wilhelm for all the cold, unfeeling remarks he'd made about Willie during the war—Old P. Bigelow is being harried by autograph hunters. They figure that an American who'd apologize to the Kaiser is a man with a signature worth having.

But Old P. Bigelow's signature, on appraisal, won't be found to be worth much. Greatness got an awful slap in the nose in the days that succeeded the signing of the Treaty of Versailles. Values are being rearranged. Some time ago they had a sale of authentic signatures of American authors. Following are a few quotations:

Gertie Altshon, $150; Ham Garland, $1; Blaise Perry, 50 cents; Hank Van Dyke, four bits; Laura Jean Libby, a buck and a half.

The slump in the waste paper market is still on.

CHAMELEON TOWN

One Monday evening The Duchess entered an ornate nut shop in mid-town to purchase twenty-five cents worth of pecan nuts, of which she is passionately fond.

Having crunched those up, the

THOSE WHO SUGGEST COOLIDGE TO HEAD G. O. P. TICKET IN 1932 ARE DEMOCRATS, STEWART FINDS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Rather curiously, Democrats are the folk who most frequently suggest ex-President Coolidge as head of the Republican national ticket in 1932. Maybe this is because it would not be very good form for Republicans to make such a suggestion. They are supposed to be agreed on President Hoover as a foregone conclusion for renomination. If the Coolidge idea occurs to a Democrat, he is at liberty to express it.

At any rate, James M. Curley, Boston's Democratic mayor, is not the only one of his party who has mentioned the ex-president recently, as a possibility at the G. O. P. convention two years hence.

For instance, Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, chairman of the current session Democratic congressional campaign committee and as crafty a political prognosticator as there is in the country, discussing 1932 presidential chances with me not long ago, referred to the Northampton nomination in that year, not as a strong probability, indeed, but as a contingency that would be seriously weighed by the Jeffersonian leaders in planning for the future.

Mayor Curley may have meant no more than to be polite (though that sort of politeness counts, if enough of it accumulates) when he addressed the former White House tenant, in a speech about the middle of July, as "Honored president that has been and may be again, should be so desired."

Representative Byrns was paying no empty compliments, however. He was talking honest-to-goodness politics, and not hoping for ex-president Coolidge's nomination either. On the contrary, he evidently considered that it would be a decidedly unsatisfactory development, from a Democratic standpoint.

Like most Democrats, the Tennessee representative predicts that 1932 will find the Republicans' ranks badly disorganized.

That he wants to think so I do not dispute. Readily admitting that what he wishes undoubtedly has a deal to do with what he prophesies, I merely relate (for whatever it may be worth) that Congressman Byrns had been speaking of the situation upon the strength of that hypothesis, from which he drew conclusions distinctly favorable to his own party's 1932 prospects—assuming that President Hoover is the G. O. P. choice to succeed himself.

"To be sure," he added, parenthetically, "if the Republicans should pick Cal, it might materially alter the outlook."

But is such a thing imaginable?—considering how firmly the two-term precedent is established; how effectively a president in office is in control of his party's machinery; how unwilling any party management is to confess, tacitly, that it has committed an error in filling so important a next night she thought she'd purchase some more. But the shop was gone. In twenty-four hours it had been converted into a papier-mache grove where a poor, oppressed foreigner in a skull cap was dispensing pineapple juice.

In New York today, any place that remains "put" for more than a week becomes a landmark.

also is mentioned—even by certain Republicans.

But Dwight is different.

Wets are the folk who might start a boom for him—if he wins, in the New Jersey senate race next November.

Let the wet-and-dry fight arrive at the point of a show-down in 1932, and if Dwight Morrow is in the senate and has made good there, no one can tell what may happen.

Prohibition is an issue which no politician pretends to be able to reckon with. It upsets (or may upset) all calculations.

The Coolidge hint rests on the supposition that things will rock along more or less normally—that is to say along the same general lines as at present, but accumulating momentum.

It doesn't make good political sense. Nevertheless, one keeps hearing it.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Hot Hamburger Sandwiches

Creamed Potatoes

String Bean, Tomato and Cucumber

Salad with French Dressing

Maple Spanish Cream

Angel Food Cake

Orange Pekoe Tea

This menu was served to three people by a woman who is an office worker. The evening before she cooked the string beans, baked the bread and angel food cake. Homemade bread is always an especial treat for guests.

In the morning before going to work she made the maple Spanish cream, seasoned the ground meat and formed it into flat rectangular cakes for frying and cooked four raw sliced potatoes with about one tablespoon minced onion and a little salt in as little water as possible. Then in the evening, while cooking the hamburger, she reheated the potatoes and added one teaspoon flour, half cup rich milk and one and a half tablespoons butter.

The sandwiches were made with the home-made bread and with very thin slices of raw onion placed underneath the hamburger.

Today's Recipes

Maple Spanish Cream—One tablespoon gelatin, one and three-fourths cups milk, four tablespoons maple syrup, two eggs, separated, two teaspoons sugar. Soak gelatin in milk half hour. Then put on fire, add maple syrup and stir until dissolved. Add yolks of eggs well beaten and stir until mixture boils. Remove from fire. Have ready the whites stiffly beaten with the sugar. Add these, and mix all thoroughly. Put in a mold and set in the refrigerator or a cool place to congeal. Serve plain or with cream.

Suggestions

In Canning Season

When making jellies and jams use old towels when handling hot kettles and glasses, as the fruit stains are sometimes hard to remove. Berry stains may usually be taken out by pouring boiling water onto the spot from a height so the water hits the material with quite a bit of force.

Guard Health of Mind Honestly

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

MRS. J.: As you have had physical examination by competent doctors, and they have assured you there is no physical basis for your exhaustion and other symptoms, it may be that you are mentally ill instead of physically ill. (Now don't be frightened; this doesn't mean insanity or anything like it.) If it is true, there is something in your unconscious mind that is causing conflicts in your conscious mind, and these conflicts cause a disturbance of your functions.

I suggest you go to a psychiatrist (a physician who specializes in mental hygiene). And read Jackson's "Outwitting Your Nerves" and Menninger's "The Human Mind." (All bookstores carry these; if not in stock, the dealer will order them for you.) They will help you to psychoanalyze yourself, and perhaps you won't even need to go to a physician; but, of course, it is better to have a physician's aid, if possible.

No, indeed, the symptoms caused by these mental disturbances are not imaginary; they are just as real as though they were caused by organic disturbances. Of course, if long continued, they may cause actual organic changes. Menninger states that most mental health or unhappiness is determined in childhood, and he gives these rules for the attitude towards the child, and comments upon the fact that most of them are "don't's."

"Don't pamper your child. Don't make him feel inferior. Don't be too severe; don't frighten him; don't make him jealous; don't worry him or worry over him; don't talk about sickness to him; don't boss him too much; don't say 'don't' to him all the time; don't compare him with others; don't let him to him; don't glorify his temper tantrums; don't bribe him; don't over-excite him; don't be angry at him; don't show favoritism; don't exhibit your authority for his own sake; don't hate him...."

"There are only a few possible adjustments to be given in the reactions for preserving mental health, but these have been arrived in the same way. Here some of them.

"Set up as an ideal the fact of reality as honestly and cheerfully as possible.

"Cultivate social contacts and social developments.

"Recognize neurotic evasion, such as take advantage of opportunities for sublimation.

"Learn to know the evidence of mental pathology and how to deal with them.

"Assume that the unhappy always wrong."

I'll explain that neurosis is a mental disorder of ill-defined characteristics, usually functional. Examples are fixed ideas, morbid doubts, obsessions, etc. By definition it is a disturbance of the energy belonging to a primitive tendency into new channels that you and others will apply.

Mrs. S.: Our pamphlet on I ney and Bladder Disorders answers your questions. See color rules.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand n be accompanied by a "fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus following small charge to help cost of printing and handling: each article wanted, two cents; for each pamphlet, 10 cents in coin. The pamphlets are Recting and Gaining Hygiene of Women, The Urinary System. Add Dr. Peters Bureau, in care of paper. Write legibly, and not 200 words.

Keep A Stiff Upper Lip

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What is to be done when the boy you love does not reciprocate? What advice can I possibly give a young woman under the circumstances? I can't say to the young man, "Now look here, this girl loves you with all her heart. She would make you a good wife, therefore, see to it that you return her affection; and bless you, my children!"

A man couldn't fall in love with a girl at my say so, and most girls wouldn't want to marry a man who did not love them. I know I wouldn't. Happy marriages are seldom made that way. Too often the one who is not in love with married later meets some one that they can love, and then the marriage starts a grand toboggan slide.

So I'm afraid the only suggestion I can make to either girl or man whose love is unrequited is to keep a stiff upper lip. Heads up, eyes to the front, take one day at a time and live through it with courage. And then another, and another, and so on, until the pain becomes less severe, and finally is gone with only a small scar remaining.

"DEAR MISS VIRGINIA LEE: I have been dating a fellow I met three months ago. The trouble is I fell in love with him, but I don't think he loves me. He is out of town quite often, but always writes to me, and I used to have dates with him every other night, but it's once a week now, and maybe not that.

"When he was away this last time I wrote and asked him what the matter was, but he answered that he got orders from his boss to quit having so many dates. He is a baseball player, and I think that is true, as one of the other fellows told me he got bawled out for hitting so many dates.

"When I am with him I am heaven, he is so sweet to me. I never told me he loved me, but always tells me he likes me a lot and says he likes me better every time he is with me.

"Why is it that the fellow I love, care anything about are ways asking me for dates, and ones I do care about very seldom have dates? There is a girl 22 years old who has been married, but is divorced. She is always having the one at her house to play bridge. I know I have been having dates with him, but she doesn't know love him. When I asked him why they did down there, he said to play bridge and have a good time. She not only has him down, the fellows he runs around with.

"Dear Miss Lee, please tell what to do. I think of him every night and day. I have never a time with another girl, but I know he has other dates, as he tells me. But if I ever saw him, I would go to him. I would go to him. Please tell me how to win him his love.

"BROKEN HEARTED BOOTS You can be the best little slip and pal when you are with him. Boots, always interested in what does. You can praise him when makes good and sympathize with him when he is discouraged. says he likes you very much, maybe that feeling will grow if foster it. So cheer up, little slip. It's time enough to give up and of a broken heart when his wailing bells peal, which may be you as the bride. Don't allow it to see that you are jealous of his girls. And if the worst comes, be it with courage, dear. I know you big enough for that.

See Expert If Hair Dye Is Needed

By GLADYS GLAD

As a whole, beauty shops have improved 100 per cent within the last few years. The various treatments advocated in the majority of shops are based upon a thorough and scientific knowledge of beauty culture. Only an unreliable, cheap shop commits today the atrocities that occurred almost daily in past years.

However, the proficiency shown in the various branches of beauty culture has not yet become wholly manifest in hair-dyeing. Even in some of the best shops, although the hair itself may look lovely after the color has been applied, the condition of forehead, ears and hairline is deplorable.

Hair dyes must be used with discretion and taste. I do not approve of hair-dyeing at home. The coloring should be done by an expert who understands the work. Any hair coloring, badly applied, or used when not really necessary, will throw the natural color harmony out of balance.

However, whether you dye your hair yourself, or a hair dresser does it for you, don't allow the skin near the hair line at the back of the neck or around the face to become stained. See to it that preventive measures are taken. The following procedure will prove effective:

Rub a bit of cold cream lightly on the forehead, along the hair line, and pretty far down on the back of the neck. Also, apply a bit of the grease to the backs of the ears. The cream must not be put on thickly. And if it gets beyond the hair line into the skin, the dye will not take. If this precaution is taken, and the dye is applied carefully, there should be no stains.

Many operators allow the forehead, neck and ears to become stained, and then attempt to move the stains with the cream. This is not always effective. Sometimes a faint mark remains. The moment water is put on the dye, the dye is set. Thus, the moment you wash your forehead face and neck, the stains become more noticeable, and more difficult to eradicate.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS FRAMED by Phil

O, that Raymond Higgins. He should be a pinch-hitter any longer. He should be a regular. He writes so well. Wonder if he is after my job. Wouldn't be a bit surprised. Anyway, this snubbing business has made a softball fan of him at last and he is over at the athletic field almost every night, or so they tell me. He may even be playing with the D. T. C. Club one of these days if the ranks of the Downtowners grow any thinner. While this department is vacationing, he just keeps rolling along, like Old Man River.

This columnist has a confession to make. Being an alleged sport writer and in view of the comments we sometimes essay to make on boxing, it goes a little against the grain, but here it is. We witnessed our first prize fight in New York (if the linotype operator changes the York to York there will be some changes made). Did we say "right"? Spending $3.50 of our savings to watch Al Singer lift the world's lightweight title by giving Sammy Mandell a sleeping potion in hardly more than a minute of actual fighting. Yessir. That cured us. We have seen our first and last fight. Imagine how Skipper Finlay felt.

Walker Gibney, who is to Xenia softball circles what Kenesaw Mountain Landis is to organized baseball, has hit upon a brand new idea for raising necessary funds to finance the sport locally next season. If Gib's plan is carried out, two all-star teams will be chosen from the ranks of the two local softball leagues at the close of the present season. They will play a seven-game series and an admission of ten cents will be charged to each game. Gib's idea is to have the fans select the two teams through the medium of this paper. At present the softball commission is "broke" and only two-thirds of the playing season has been completed.

With all these miniature golf courses springing up in and around Xenia like dandelions the natural deduction is that the next fad will be "marbles golf." This form of midget golf is acquiring a tremendous following among the boys especially.

The endurance racket now embraces tree-sitting and bicycle riding and may soon obtain a foothold in Xenia unless we miss our guess. While on the subject of endurance records they say John Akeney is thinking of promoting an automobile endurance contest, the existing record being something like 149 hours of continuous driving without a stop.

Local interest is attached to the feat of James "Scotty" Reston, Dayton, in winning the first championship of the new Ohio Public Links Golf Association at Canton, O., from a field of sixty-two rivals in a 72-hole event, by reason of the fact Reston lists himself as being associated with the Greenmount golf club, a new public golf links located on the Greene-Montgomery county line on the Dayton Pike. Reston topped the field with a score of 236, four strokes ahead of his nearest competitor, Scotty is a junior of the University of Illinois.

The new miniature golf course opened Saturday night at Osborn is the property of Russ Carr, former Xenian, who was well-known in local athletic circles. The course was designed and built by Clem Henrie who, with his brother, built a course operated by the brothers here. Russ Carr and his brother used to operate a garage here and were patrons of an independent football team with which Russ was a player. Phil Buck can tell you about the time the team went up to Piqua to play a Sunday afternoon game and came back so badly battered after a 3 to 0 defeat that about all of the football inspiration was taken out of the boys for the rest of the season.

UNUSUAL LIBRARY DISPLAY PLANNED FOR COUNTY FAIR

The library exhibit at the Greene County Fair in August will be designed to show visitors to the arts hall the difference between library service several hundred years ago and similar service provided throughout the county today. One of the most interesting features of what promises to be an unusual display will be a model of the county library in Xenia built by a 12-year-old Xenia school girl, Vinette Boyce. Vinette is entirely responsible for all the details of construction including the charging desk, complete with desk lights and attendant.

The library has also arranged to have on display a number of new books and to have current issues of some of the more popular magazines on hand for fair attendants or visitors who, tired of the heat and crowds, would like to sit down, glance through a short story or two, and start on the round of fair attractions again, refreshed, cool and rested.

The new county library truck, purchased in January, 1930, to enable the library to send books more cheaply than before to all schools, deposit stations and branch libraries in the county, will be parked during the days of the fair just outside the arts hall.

CRITERIONS, GEYERS, WIN IN DOUBLE BILL MONDAY EVENING

Good, bad and indifferent softball was on exhibition at the athletic field Monday night, the occasion being a double-header to fill in a gap in the American League schedule.

Behind the pitching of Herman Wells, the Criterion nine, cellar occupants in the National League, registered a decisive 12 to 2 victory over Krippendorf, leader of the American League, in the first game.

In the second half of the bargain attraction, Geyers blasted out a 13 to 9 victory over the Clinton Supply Co. outfit of Wilmington in the third and "rubber" game between these two teams, a contest that was marred by umpire bailing.

First Game
The opener of the twin bill furnished a comparison of the type of play in the National and American Leagues and the lop-sided triumph of the Criterion over Krippendorf indicated conclusively that the National brand of ball is much better.

Wells, Criterion pitcher, allowed the American League leaders only five hits in the seven innings played and struck out seven batters. Meanwhile his mates were gathering ten blows off "Pino" Perrine, Krippendorf hurler, who was handicapped by ragged support. The losers tallied one run in the third on two errors and a single by Snell and in the sixth Harold Parrett, 108 W. Third St., proved to be the Bobby Jones of Xenia's second miniature golf course, located on N. Detroit St., north of the entrance to the Xenia Country Club, which opened informally Monday night.

Par for the eighteen-hole midget links is forty-six strokes and "Bobby" Parrett, on his second attempt, turned in a card of forty-seven, only one over par, for which feat he received a prize of $2.50 in gold.

Parrett's card included five "birdies," one under par, and an ace on the tenth hole. He was one stroke above par figures on four holes and two strokes above par on one. The first time he played the course he shot holes in one on the dog's leg fourth and the eleventh holes.

Robert "Skipper" Finlay, N. King St., had the second lowest score of the evening with a fifty. He had aces on the eighth and fourteenth holes.

More than 250 people patronized the new bantam links on opening night and found the course extremely hazardous, which tended to make it more fascinating.

The course has been named the "Bobby Lou." It is operated by Robert Bell and is patterned after a similar miniature links which he operates in Cincinnati.

The formal opening of the course is planned for next Saturday night. Cash prizes will be awarded for the low score each week and in addition a prize will be given each time a player succeeds in shooting par or under for the course.

LOUIS BALES SETS COURSE RECORD TO WIN GOLF TOURNEY

Louis Bales, Xenia, set a new course record for the Henrie Bros. miniature golf course to win the senior tournament sponsored at that course last week.

Bales turned in a low card of 39 during the week and was awarded a niblick as the prize in the tourney Saturday evening. Emmett Tuhey, Xenia Country Club caddy, who had set the course record before, had his record changed, shot a 42 to win the junior division and was awarded a prize of a putter.

Tuhey had shot a 36 on the course after it was first opened, but his record score was thrown out after the hazards were changed on several greens, notably the seventeenth and Bales' score stands as the new course record. Some remarkably good scores were turned in during the week.

The Henrie Brothers announce that tournaments for men, women and children will be played this week and prizes in each division will be awarded Saturday.

WILBERFORCE WILL FACE HARD GAMES

The Wilberforce University softball team anticipates a strenuous time during the next two weeks, being scheduled to play at least five and possibly more games. The "Force" is booked to meet Carroll-Binder Tuesday night, the Criterion Thursday and Coach Marvin Borst's Cedarville College nine Friday, all games to be played at Wilberforce. Next week Wilberforce will stack up against a league-leading team at Wilmington on Wednesday and probably play Geyers again on the following Thursday.

CARROLL'S CASE TO BE HEARD BY JURY

NEW YORK, July 29.—Earl Carroll scored point one today in his efforts to have his "Vanities" adjudged an innocent production. His case is to be tried before a jury. Judge Otto A. Rosalsky granting Carroll's application for a jury trial, and his application for a transfer of the case to General Sessions.

First, however, the evidence must be presented to the grand jury, and if an indictment is not found, Carroll may escape further prosecution.

XENIA GIRL NEARLY DROWNS MONDAY IN STREAM NEAR CITY

Stepping into water deeper than she thought, Mary Chambliss, 16, Center St., lost her footing and narrowly escaped drowning Monday evening. The accident occurred at the Caesarscreek bridge on the Maple Corner Road, four miles south of Xenia.

Miss Chambliss had gone to the river to swim with Mr. and Mrs. George Ewing and family, 606 Chestnut St. She had waded out into the creek and came to a "step-off" which caused her to fall. She was going down the third time when she was rescued from the water by a man by the name of Dodge, living on Stelton Road. Resuscitation methods were used and later she was removed to the office of a Xenia physician. Later in the evening she was taken to the Ewing home, where she was reported to be improved Tuesday afternoon but was still confined to her bed, suffering from shock.

She is the daughter of Ben Chambliss and makes her home with her grandmother, Mrs. John Johnson, Center St.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 29.—The utility stocks and the specialties were the leaders today in a feeble upturn of prices, which was not generally shared in by other sections of the market.

In the first two hours the volume of trading was smaller by 45 per cent than in the same period yesterday, and speculative interest was largely centered in a small number of the favorites.

A 6-point drop in Southern Railway to 89, consequent on the continued decline in net income of the railroad systems as a whole, unsettled the rail stocks, and weakness spread to a number of the best grade dividend shares. Atchafalaya fell off 5 points to 215 3/4; Southern Pacific was down about 2 points; New York Central down 1 at 164 1/2; Chesapeake and Ohio down 2 at 188 and Pennsylvania down 1. Union Pacific lost 4 points at 217.

General Motors and Dupont pushed ahead aggressively in the forenoon, Dupont reaching a new high on the move at 117 3/4, up 3. Standard Gas led the utilities in a 2-point rise to 102 1/2, and slightly higher prices were quoted for Electric Power and Light, National Power, North American and American and Foreign power.

Accompanying the selling wave in the railroad stocks in the third hour, the bears launched a drive on the industrials, using as their principal argument the overthrow of the liberal government in Canada, with the threatened decrease in reciprocal trade between the United States and Canada.

CITY LAND VALUES

Among all of the necessities of man, land is the only staple which does not fluctuate in quantity. The wheat crop in Argentina or the cotton crops of India and Egypt may be moved to this country and vary the supply and value of these commodities, but the lands of those countries cannot be brought here.

The value of urban lands depends almost wholly upon population and the land's proximity to its center. With a limited supply, and a demand invariably increasing with population, increase in values through a period of years is inevitable.

Dayton's population is growing, and increase in city land values over a period of years is thus made certain. This is why Dayton real estate values do not fluctuate greatly, and why our first mortgages resting on them are dependable under all conditions.

SPLASH! She Swims to Conquer

By Eleanore Burnett

READ THIS FIRST:
Kitty Wilmet, crack swimmer, super stenographer, leaves Hillerton, her home town after refusing John Spurgeon, her lawyer lover, to seek her fortune in the big city, and to be "free." A sweet and unselfish girl, Kitty is too inexperienced to know that her somewhat egotistical judgments are immature; she is "always right." She has a disagreeable adventure on the train from which she is rescued by a man whose name she does not learn. On arriving at her boarding house, she discovers she has been robbed of most of her money. Next day she goes to the Natatorium for her daily swim, meets Baby Ayers and Altee Wainwright, and is persuaded to give a swimming exhibition. After a long swim under water, she is grabbed and kissed by an unknown man when the electric lights go out. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 4
The arm let go as swiftly as they had closed her in their embrace. The lights came on again Kitty looked angrily around. The little group had scattered; no man looked guiltily conscious of having stolen the kiss! Altee stepped forward to offer his congratulations; Baby gave her no time to tell of the indignity.
"I am a moron and you are wonderful!" she cried. "You are coming home to dinner with me, you beautiful thing, you! I won't take no for an answer! You've got to meet Sally—my sister. Every one loves Sally—please say you'll come!"
The small girl put both arms around her. To her surprise Kitty, still shaking with indignation at that unforfeitable kiss, patted Baby on the shoulder and said yes; and then it seemed wiser not to tell about it.

Altee drove them to a quiet apartment. Baby led the way upstairs. "Come on in to the dump!" she cried. "Sally! Sally! Guests! Get out the faded bottle and—Sally, this is Kitty Wilmet, the crackest fish who ever waved a fin! Kitty, my sister! Best old scout in the world!"
"The 'best old scout in the world' gave Kitty an immediate impression of placidity. The girl who stretched forth two large hands in welcome was Junoesque; tall, ample yet not fat. The phrase 'Mother of the Gracchi' occurred to Kitty; this woman was built to be the mother of men! Sally Ayers had a clear, creamy skin, a large, harmless, placid face, a mouth neither large nor small, thin lips not full; a straight Grecian nose and wonderful teeth. It was impossible to think of her as ruffled, angry, hurried, eager—and yet she was bright and quick in speech and movement. A simple printed house dress seemed embellished by the massive figure it enveloped.
"You are most welcome!" she took both Kitty's hands in hers. "I hope you won't mind being crowded—"

Kitty didn't mind. The apartment was very small; four rooms, none of them bigger than Kitty's country house standards, than closets. Much furniture protruded in unexpected places. "Mind the phonograph; don't bump into the radio—that couch will trick you with that arm if you don't jump over it. Mind sitting on the ice box?" were some of the cautions shot at her by Baby.
She learned that Altee was chief clerk, Sally head bookkeeper to Ellery Goss, Wall Street king. She was introduced to Patty Hemming, a stout stock broker and heard talk of a certain Joe, Sally's friend, now out of town. Then she caught sight of a small figure that made her heart beat. He came forward to be introduced.
"I thought I'd lost you for good!" He turned to Sally and Baby; "This is the goddess I met on the train!"
"Oh, it's Fate! Here is where I lose a perfectly good boy friend!" wailed Baby. "Kitty, last night you saw you knew Bert Croydton?"
Kitty shook hands, dimpling. "I didn't know his name. But isn't the world small? Thank you again so much!"
"Why didn't you swim today?" interrupted Baby. Then to Kitty "Bert's like a cat; he thinks water is something made to go under bridges, not to go into. Sally, darling, where's the life of the party? I want a cocktail!" They disappeared towards what Kitty supposed was the kitchen.

Kitty made up her mind rapidly, as always. Cocktails were not unknown in Hillerton, but she had never indulged. Her father had believed that perfect health followed constant training. "You can't swim well on liquor or tobacco!" he had often said. "Make up your mind you'd rather be a good fellow, or a good swimmer!"

"Gee, you are wonderful."

But—she had come to be "free." One cocktail couldn't hurt—
Bert bore in a tray, spoke to Kitty: "Cocktail or highball, Miss—"
"Fragrants sake don't crab!" cried Baby. "If you can't call her by her name, sit on the floor and get acquainted!"
Kitty caught the spirit of the little party. She turned on the dimple. "I'll take a cocktail, thank you, Bert. Altee, Patty, come and drink with me! Baby, you are some mixer!"
She felt daring, but was pleased, later, when Sally slipped a big arm around her and whispered: "Kitty dear, they are a wild crew, but their hearts are all right, and every one of them is strong for you and—"
—A liar and a crook, I tell you! Don't mention his name to me!"
Altee's voice, suddenly angry, broke in. Patty Hemming's big brown eyes filled with indignation. "You're wrong, Altee! Gordon Platt is no crook or Goss wouldn't have him 'round. But can the temper, anyhow—this is a party!"
Altee subsided. Sally drew Kitty to one side, evidently feeling some explanation due Kitty. "This Gordon Platt is peculiar looking," she said; "sometimes I think he's very handsome, and then, that he is so ugly he's beautiful. Altee hates him. I don't know why. Platt is Mr. Goss' confidential agent—sometimes I've thought he must be a partner. He's a real swell. I've never been able to make up easily. Not unless I know people real well!"
Dinner was exciting. Every one, it seemed, was cook. Much of the food came from cans. Every one, talked, and served, and drank, at once. The confusion was deafening, but Kitty enjoyed it. After dinner the small rooms were cleared and they danced for a couple of hours. To Kitty's surprise Patty Hemming danced with extraordinary ease, in spite of his size. It was a fast and furious dance, and she followed blindly in steps she had never seen, much less tried.

Then they were all at the table again, and highballs made their appearance.
Kitty felt a little giddy, but the effect was happy, if queer. It was very frank, too; strangely frank to Kitty, who had never attended a gathering in which personal familiarities were so commonplace they seemed natural. Baby sat on any lap which was convenient, or a chair, or the table; Patty proposed that Sally do likewise.

"That great cow!" derided Baby. "She'd crush even you! If you must have a girl on your knee, take Kitty!"
"You shall not call your sister a cow!" reproved Patty. "She's a nice elephant or a megatherium or the Woolworth building, but she's not bovine!"
"You've nothing for a girl to sit on, anyhow!" put in Bert. "Come here, Kitty and sit on a proper knee!"
"You'd much better sit on mine!" countered Kitty, which hit at Bert's small stature brought a laugh.
"I know you think we are wild Indians!" cried Sally. "But we are quite harmless—at least, most of us are—" Her face clouded for a moment. Kitty saw her eyes rest doubtfully on Baby, perched for the moment on Altee's knee, wiping a dish.
Baby caught her eye. "Kitty, the human fish, will now tell us her life history!" she declared.
"My life story is soon told!" answered Kitty. "Country orphan girl in the wicked city, looking for a place to make pot hooks for a living; rescued by one Bert Croydton in train from clutches of drunken man; robbed on arrival; presented by Fate with good friends and hostess on arrival!"
"Can you stenog and hundred and fifty?" demanded Altee, interestedly.
Kitty smiled in affirmation.
"Well, it evidently was fat that you swam into my admiration and my affections!" he declared. "I'm crazy about you, you know. The boss is holding a competition Monday to pick two new personal secretaries, and heaven help the winners! She'll get a fine job and earn every cent of the $60 a week he pays for a start! He dictates like a man made desperately ill by swallowing a dictionary and hates errors! Want to try?"
Kitty thought she did. She asked questions. It was, it appeared, a large office, employing some fifty people. Ellery Goss kept five stenographers busy all day and would have none but the best. He had half a dozen bookkeepers, as many assistant bookkeepers, and a dozen typists, besides file clerks, mail clerks and general helpers.
"A fair man to work for; human down at the bottom, but the bottom is a long way down!" explained Sally. "He hasn't any manners. We don't mind him—but I did, terribly, at first."

The opportunity sounded interesting. Kitty thanked Altee for the chance and promised to appear at the office at nine, Monday.
Bert and Patty said good night to her on the sidewalk when the party broke up at midnight, leaving Altee to see her home.
"I hope you are a good stenographer!" began Altee, as they seated themselves in the taxi. "If you get this job, don't you fall for that Gordon Platt! God! How I hate that man! I hope you get it. I'd like to have you around!"
"That's nice!" answered Kitty, wondering why she should "fall for" Mr. Platt. "Just why do you hope I'll get the position?"
"Don't be a moron! I'm wild about you! But I'm wasting a fearful lot of time! Here! This will tell you!"
The taxi drew up at the boarding house with a quick turn; its motion threw Kitty against Altee. His arms went around her, and his lips pressed hotly to hers. For a long instant Kitty lay unresisting in his arms, quivering to a queer lightheaded thrill she had never felt before—then before she could tear loose, he had released her, opened the door and helped her out.
"Wait!" commanded Altee to the driver. He walked with her to the door.
"Not peevish like you were in the dark this afternoon?" He took her silence for a negative. "Good! Good night, Kitty, dear—"
Kitty shut the door behind him and leaned against it, gasping.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

It looks as if this column is to be confounded in its recent statement that the comedy teams of the pictures would be split because of the policy that it would not be good business to permit two big names to work together.

Since then the star-names have been teamed up more enthusiastically than ever and the latest of these is the signing of Robert Armstrong and James Gleason to feature parts in Pathe's "Looking for Trouble."

This pair was split some months ago at the completion of "Oh, Yeah" and since then have been busy at different studios. With this combination supporting Eddie Quillan, who stars in the film, competition should be keen for leading honors.

The story is by Walter de Leon and Russell Mack and deals with gangsters, but is different from its predecessors in that it treats the situations entirely from a comedy angle. Armstrong will portray a gangster leader and Gleason will be a member of the gang. Quillan will be shown as a messenger boy for a brokerage company who becomes mixed up with the lawbreakers. Pathe is attempting to borrow Loretta Young from Warners for the feminine lead. Russell Mack will direct.

The signing of Ford Sterling by Al Christie completes the list of eight comedians that will star in thirty-eight comedies for the producer during the coming season. Johnny Hines, who was put under a contract a few days ago, has started on his first two-reeler, and stories are being prepared for the rest of the list, which includes Clyde Cook, Charlotte Greenwood, Buster and John West, Bert Roach and Tom Patricola.

Having successfully portrayed the character of "Billy the Kid" in the film of the same name, Johnny Mack Brown, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has decided, shall play the lead in the picture dealing with pioneer history.

This time his activities will be confined below the Mason Dixon line, his native habitat, in "The Great Meadow" by Mary Mattox Roberts. The story deals with Daniel Boone's life and early Kentucky. In book form the story was a best seller and received high mention in the Literary Guild selections for 1930. The film will not star for some time as Johnny still has several scenes for "Billy the Kid" and a lead opposite Joan Crawford in "Great Day" to complete first.

To further the laughs generated by five comedians appearing in Radio's "Half Shot at Sunrise," the comedy dialogue writers have contributed generously with wise cracks. One for the wartime comedy is: Diner—"I can't eat this duck! Send for the manager!" Waiter—"It's no use. He won't eat it either."

28 PER CENT OF DOLLAR SPENT IS FOR FOOD

According to statistics taken recently in eleven American cities, the largest part of the average dollar is spent for food.

The survey showed that when the dollar was divided, 28.51 cents were spent for this important item. Next in importance came clothing, which took up 24.29 cents of the dollar. Women, the report shows, are the chief cause of the high clothing bill, as 19.52 cents of the clothing item goes for feminine apparel. Next to food and clothing, the American public's demand for automobiles takes 12.1 cents.

These figures show that clothing and automobiles take large shares of our dollar, but it is interesting to note that the greatest part of it is absorbed by food stuff.

It seems that the biggest consideration is given what we eat and we seem to eat quite an amount. The percentage spent would make the rest of the world believe we are a nation of heavy eaters. This may be so. But much of the food bought is wasted in any number of ways. One of the largest items is spoilage. Lack of refrigeration or improper refrigeration is responsible for a large amount of food going to waste. Food can be purchased more economically in large quantities. The saving thus made, attracts the housewife, but if this food is spoiled through lack of proper refrigeration, the economy is lost.

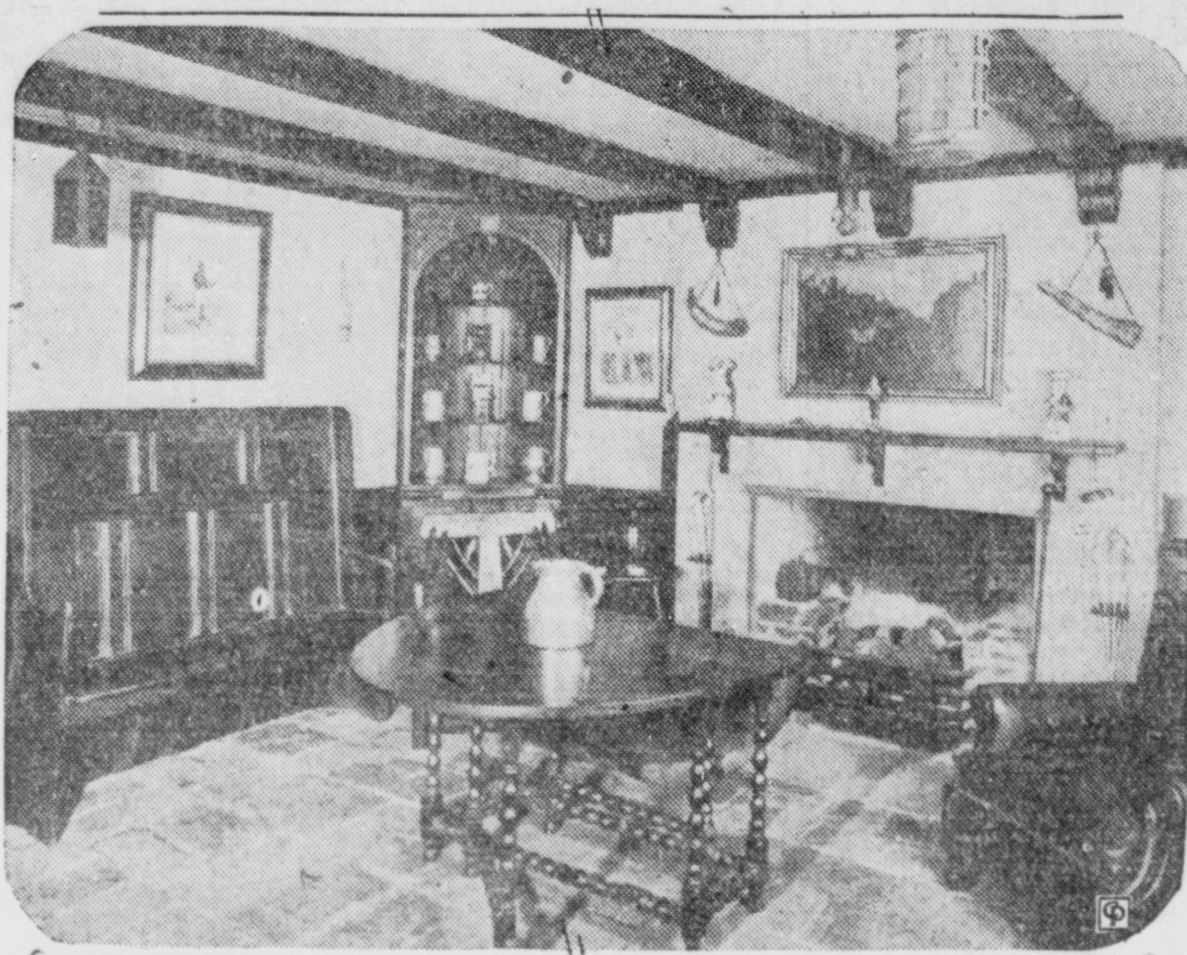

It has been estimated that about 10 per cent of the yearly food expenditure is wasted either because of inefficient refrigeration or no refrigeration at all.

This percentage of wastage can be reduced by installing modern electric refrigeration which keeps perishable foods and milks at a safe temperature at all times.

In the case of milk, especially, the government has experimented and passed on to the public, reports showing the proper temperature at which it should be kept. After exhaustive tests, the government found that the temperature should never be above 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

It is said that the percentage of food waste would be greater if the housewife knew that the appearance of food is deceitful. It is a known fact that certain meats and foods can appear to be tasty and appetizing, yet be unfit for consumption.

Retailers of foodstuffs are constantly checked up by city health authorities to make sure that the merchandise offered to the public is in the best of condition. To be consistent then, every home in the country should have a good electric refrigerator in which to store their purchases until used, or the care and precaution taken by the merchant is wasted.

In time past the cellar was a darksome spot, smelling of winter vegetables and frequented only by the man who attended to the furnace and the ash man. Nowadays architects and decorators plan every inch of it carefully, decorate it delightfully, and call it by intriguing names. The room shown here is done in the early English manner, with stone floor, rough plaster walls, hand-hewn beams in the ceiling. There is a fireplace and the furniture, consisting of a settee, wainscot chair, drop-leaf table and corner cupboard, is of ancient oak. The design was chosen by Elizabeth H. Russell, decoration editor of The American Home Magazine, for Central Press Association.

NEUTRALITY PLANS DROPPED BY HOOVER AS PRIMARIES NEAR

of the people of Tennessee.

The so-called Reece plan is to appoint a federal commission of three to negotiate for the leasing of Muscle Shoals to private power interests.

During the campaign for the presidency, when pressed to expand his views on what should be done with Muscle Shoals, Mr. Hoover said that while in general he favored a policy of private development of hydro-electric power, he considered Muscle Shoals "an exception" to such a policy. In his first message to congress, however he recommended a policy akin to the Reece plan.

The Muscle Shoals matter is going to be fought out all over again in the next session of congress. That much is certain. The senate has twice passed the Norris bill providing for government operation, while the well-disciplined house has refused to accept it.

Senator Norris declared that in writing the letter to Reece "The president takes the side of the power trust."

"It seems to me," said the Nebraskaan, "that it is a violation of the pledge he made during the campaign, which many leaders in Tennessee took in good faith. The people of Tennessee were led to believe that Mr. Hoover favored government operation of Muscle Shoals."

Senator McKellar (D) of Tennessee, declared it was "unusual" for the president to invade a party primary, but what he is really doing, McKellar added, "is to come out squarely for the power interests."

Price, the opponent of Reece, has been conducting his campaign on a platform endorsing the Norris bill. The result of the fight in the first district of Tennessee should prove an interesting referendum on what the people want done with the great plant that lies at its back door. It should also prove, incidentally, the efficacy of Mr. Hoover's endorsement of Reece.

AIRSHIP STARTS ON 2,800-MILE FLIGHT AND CANADIAN GOAL

ship's motors are set up in Paris tandem fashion, with the three "pushers" capable of being reversed.

Originally intended for high-speed passenger traffic, the dirigible has accommodations for 100 persons in its thirty-two cabins, with these cabins on the second and third decks of the three-deck passenger structure. On the lower decks, and there are balcony decks fifty-six chairs and two promenade decks, and there are balcony decks on the upper passenger deck.

The crew is put up on the number one deck of the ship's great cabin, with the control car only projecting outside the outer hull of the dirigible.

Ordinary gasoline of the current high refining is used by the R-100, with hydrogen and fifteen internal lifting tanks available to lift the ship.

While numerous precautions against mishaps have been taken by officers on the first long trip of their craft, the R-100 is designed on lines of luxury and comfort sadly lacking in the great German airship. Smoking is made possible, and there is a comfortable lounge comparing to that of the best hotels. Hot meals are the order of the day, with drinks and food on ice if desired.

Warned by the frequent experiences other dirigibles have had with undesirable stowaways, Squadron Leader R. S. Booth posted a detachment of alert guards about his ship before the start to frustrate secret boarding by uninvited persons.

When the huge ship sailed forth, it ventured over the water and land route well fortified by detailed information of conditions surrounding it. Elaborate weather charts were provided by the air ministry, and the moment the R-100 started it began receiving regular reports issued from the British meteorological center at Cardington. Ships at sea, stations in Greenland and American weather bureaus have been requested to cooperate in furnishing every bit of information of prevailing conditions possible.

Specially designed civilian uniforms are worn by officers and crew, and parachutes have been provided as a last measure of safety. The air ministry stated that passengers and mail were not accepted because the flight was wholly experimental, and that in the near future this ban will be revoked provided the present venture proves successful. A number of Americans, it was learned, were among the many who offered large sums for passage on the airship.

2½ Cents in the Dollar

Not Wall Street's idea of money making

Why has A & P more customers than any other grocer on earth? . . . "It sells for cash at the lowest price possible," answers The Business Week, a magazine that studies business methods.

And why are A & P's prices so low? . . . "It buys direct from original producers, and makes every known short cut in distribution," says The Business Week.

Then, not satisfied with other people's say-so, Business Week digs into the official records of A & P's sales and profits, and by a simple sum in arithmetic gets the rest of the story—namely, that A & P keeps only 2½ cents of every dollar taken over its counter.

"Two-and-a-half cents profit is not Wall Street's idea of something to capitalize," says Business Week, explaining Wall Street's complete separation from so large a business enterprise as A & P. But it is A & P's idea of fair treatment of the housewife.

LAUNCH ENDURANCE DRIVING TEST HERE

"Happy" Ancell, California, will attempt to break existing endurance record for automobile driving in a test to start here next Saturday under auspices of Ankeney Motor Sales, Green St.

The test will be staged by the Merchants Sales Promotion Co., Dayton, in charge of W. F. Weidner. Ancell will drive a stock Chrysler six sedan, handcuffed to the steering wheel, and will attempt to break the existing record of 146 hours.

The car will be driven entirely in Greene County and will visit all towns in this county, making stops of not more than five minutes duration. The test will require the driver to go without sleep during the drive. The test will probably start from the Court House about 7 o'clock next Saturday evening but the time and the schedule will be announced later.

CAPTAIN THOMPSON ACTING CHIEF HERE

Captain Charles Thompson is serving as acting chief of police during the absence of Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, who is enjoying a two-week's vacation and is spending it at Camp Perry, O., where Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, of which he is commanding officer, is encamped for its annual summer training period.

With Cornwell having a respite from his duties and Captain Thompson taking his place, Patrolman Fred Jones, who has a pay trick, has been assigned to the night shift. Acting Chief Thompson has been particularly busy as twenty-two arrests were made by the department last week.

INFANT DIES

Charlotte Elizabeth, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Melvin, who reside on the Charleston Pike, two miles northeast of Jamestown, died at McClellan Hospital Monday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock. Intussusception, or telescoping of the intestines, was the cause of death. The child became ill Sunday and was removed to the hospital Monday morning.

The baby was eight months old, having been born last November. She is survived by her parents, two brothers, James and Kenneth and one sister, Leona, all at home. Funeral services will be held at the Friends Church in Jamestown in charge of the Rev. Mr. Vance Thursday morning at 10 o'clock with burial in the Sabina Cemetery.
